Intercollegiate Club and Intramural Athletics

Manhattan University sponsors 19 Division I intercollegiate athletics programs that compete in the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference. A charter member of the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference, the Jaspers have won 83 MAAC championships and own one national championship, the 1973 NCAA title in men's indoor track and field. Several accomplished student-athletes have competed for the Jaspers in recent years, including former NBA player Luis Flores '04, four-time Olympian Aliann Pompey '00.

Draddy Gymnasium draws several students each day for recreation, physical education classes, intramural play, club competition, and varsity sport contests and practices. Gaelic Park hosts most of Manhattan University's outdoor sports, including men's soccer, women's soccer, men's lacrosse, women's lacrosse and softball. Manhattan's baseball team plays its home games at Van Cortlandt Park.
