

School of Continuing & Professional Studies-General Information

Historical Note

Founded in 1997, the Undergraduate Degree Completion Program at Manhattan College is a unique alternative to the traditional method of pursuing a college degree. The program is designed to provide adult students who have started and stopped their college careers a non-traditional opportunity to complete a baccalaureate degree to advance their professional careers and for personal achievement.

In this time of economic uncertainty, adults are sheltering themselves in to our program in greater numbers with the goal of completing a degree and augmenting their resume. Located in the Riverdale section of the Bronx, one block from Broadway at 238th Street, our accelerated, 24-month undergraduate degree program has been the school of choice for thousands of employees from corporations such as Con Edison, UPS, the MTA and NYPD. These workers have turned to Manhattan College's Undergraduate Degree Completion Program to prepare themselves for managerial and supervisory positions in emerging global, corporate and industrial environments.

Mission Statement

The mission of the School of Continuing and Professional Studies is to prepare adult students for success in emerging global, corporate or industrial environments. The School is committed to creating and offering programs designed to serve the adult population with a particular focus on mid-career adults desiring to advance their professional careers and/or fulfill personal achievement goals. The School of Continuing & Professional Studies offers faculty experience in real-world application of their subjects, academically trained professors, blended learning environments for an integrated approach, small group classes with individual attention and weekly meeting schedules that work with your busy life.
