

History, Political Science & International Studies

Dr. Margaret Groarke
Chair of the Department

The department offers three majors and minors: History; Political Science; and International Studies. Each discipline draws from both social sciences and the humanities, to examine the variety of human experience, in our country, around the world, and through time. History is the study of change over time; political science is the study of power in society; international studies draws on many disciplines to understand international relations and transnational forces. In all of these majors and minors, debating contemporary issues, learning to do research, and writing persuasively prepares students for successful careers.

HISTORY

All history majors and minors are invited to participate in the social, co-curricular, and vocational activities of the department. The department houses a chapter of Phi Alpha Theta, the international history honor society. Outstanding history majors are elected to its membership. In addition, the department has two lecture series honoring the memory of past department chairs. An annual lecture in honor of Brother Casimir Gabriel Costello, F.S.C., features European history, and a biennial series focuses on topics in early American history in honor of Professor Robert Christen.

Requirements for a Major in History

Students in the School of Liberal Arts who major in history must complete a minimum of 33 credits in history courses. These credits must include:

HIST 100	Experiencing History	3
HIST 300	Historical Methods	3
HIST 490	Senior Seminar	3
One of the following (or another 200-level course approved by chair):

MinorRequirements for a Minor in History

15 credits of history courses, with most at the 300-level or above. The program is worked out individually with the department chair, but typically includes at least three 300-level courses, one in each region: Europe, U.S., World. A minimum grade of C is required to receive credit in the minor.

POLITICAL SCIENCE

The Political Science major seeks to maximize students' ability to analyze and interpret the significance of political events, institutions, behavior, and governmental processes at the local, national, and international levels. The major is designed to equip students to play more effective roles as citizens of a democratic nation and of the world and to prepare them for careers in public service, politics, diplomacy, law, business, journalism, and college teaching.

MajorRequirements for a Major

Either POSC 150 Roots: Government, POSC 153 Roots: Government - FYS or POSC 201 Introduction to Government and Politics is a prerequisite for the Political Science major. In addition, majors must take a total of ten courses (30 credits) distributed as follows:

Gateway courses – all required. Majors are strongly encouraged to take the gateway course in a field before upper level courses in that field -- for example, POSC 209, Comparative Politics, before a course in Latin American or European Politics.

POSC 203	United States Government and Politics	3
POSC 209	Comparative Politics	3
POSC 210	Research Methods in Political Science	3
POSC 251	Global Issues	3
POSC 270 or POSC 271	Introduction to Political Theory American Political Thought	3

Students will also take:

- Three 300 level classes
- Senior Seminar 400-level (to be taken in senior year)
- One class any level (200-400 level) or internship

A minimum grade of C in departmental courses is necessary to fulfill the requirements for the major. Majors intending to apply to law school are encouraged to take at least one term of POSC 323 Constitutional Law: Governmental Powers or POSC 324 Constitutional Law: Civil Liberties. There are several ways one can organize one's program to meet the requirements; what follows is one suggested path. Students are encouraged to use their free electives to take a minor or a second major, work on their language skills or pursue other interests.

Minor

Requirements for a Minor

The minor is available to students in all schools.

Minors should take:

- POSC 150 Roots: Government, POSC 153 Roots: Government - FYS or POSC 201 Introduction to Government and Politics
- POSC 203 United States Government and Politics
 - One other gateway course: either POSC 209 Comparative Politics, POSC 251 Global Issues or POSC 270 Introduction to Political Theory
 - two other political science courses.

Minors are advised to start with POSC 150, POSC 153 or POSC 201 and POSC 203 and the other gateway course before selecting other courses. For a course to count for the minor, a student must earn a grade of C or better.

INTERNATIONAL STUDIES

International Studies is an interdisciplinary program founded on the premise that world events can only be understood by employing a variety of disciplinary perspectives -- including political, economic, historical, and cultural approaches -- and that they must be understood in both a regional and a global context. This interdisciplinary and international perspective will prepare students for graduate school or law school, or for careers in business, education, government, non-governmental organizations, or international organizations. Students who have specific graduate work or careers in mind may want to take a second major or a minor to further their program.

Major

Requirements for a Major in International Studies

All majors shall:

- Complete 15 credits in the core curriculum
- Complete 15 credits in the chosen area of concentration
- Acquire a satisfactory reading and speaking ability in at least one foreign language.

Areas of concentration are: Europe; Asia; Latin America and the Caribbean; Africa and the Middle East; and Global Affairs. This last category focuses on transregional issues such as the environment, technology, ethnicity, and international law and organizations. See below for the lists of courses in each area of concentration.

The Department of English, World Languages & Literatures offers courses in Arabic, French, Italian, Japanese, and Spanish. International Studies majors should take through second year of a language relevant to their concentration, if offered, or demonstrate equivalent ability on a proficiency exam administered by the faculty in the World Languages & Literatures discipline. A minimum grade of C or better is required in all language courses. If available, a minor is strongly encouraged.

All International Studies majors are strongly encouraged to spend one or two semesters of their junior year abroad. A minimum grade of C is required in all courses used to fulfill the requirements for a major or minor in International Studies and for all courses taken abroad.

International Studies majors are advised to take ECON 150 Roots: Economics as one of their Social Science Core requirements.

Social Studies Concentration

Both Childhood Education students and Adolescent Education students may choose a concentration in Social Studies. The requirements for both concentrations are detailed in the Education Department's section of the catalog. They must consult with their Social Studies advisor in choosing their History and social science courses. A minimum grade of C is necessary to receive credit in the concentrations.

Childhood Education

Students majoring in Childhood Education with a concentration in Social Studies will take 30 credits – 21 credits in History, and 9 credits in social science disciplines. The specific requirements are detailed in the Education Department's section of the catalog.

Adolescent Education

Students majoring in Adolescent Education with a concentration in Social Studies will take 42 credits – 27 credits in History, and 15 credits in social science disciplines. The specific requirements are detailed in the Education Department's section of the catalog.

Double Major with Adolescent Education

Students majoring in Adolescent Education with a concentration in Social Studies may earn a double major in History, by taking, in addition to the requirements for their concentration, one additional History course. The additional course may be History 100 or a 300-level History elective.
